UKRAINIAN AND EUROPEAN PSYCHOTHERAPY ALLIANCE TENTH SYMPOSIUM

“FREEDOM, DIGNITY AND MEANING”

Patricia Hunt FRSA

*Chair of the Ukrainian and European Psychotherapy Alliance,
Former President of the European Association for Psychotherapy

It is extraordinary and wonderful that we have reached the Tenth UUAP and EAP Symposium, organised by the Ukrainian and European Psychotherapy Alliance. When we first began our work together, the Alliance could never have imagined that we would reach ten Symposiums.

The idea of these Symposiums has proven to be visionary and highly successful, with more than 1,000 psychotherapists registering for each event held so far. In total, the first nine Symposiums have received 10,850 registrations!

The feedback has been overwhelmingly positive, and it is clear that the Symposiums have helped to strengthen the resilience of Ukrainian psychotherapists, offering vital professional and human support during the war. We extend our heartfelt thanks to everyone who has contributed to these remarkable Symposiums, and to the participants who make them meaningful and alive.

The theme of our Tenth Symposium is “Freedom, Dignity and Meaning.” This follows our Ninth Symposium, which focused on four primary emotions: Anger, Humour, Connection and Love. In this Tenth Symposium, we turn our attention to three core dimensions and longings of humanity – Freedom, Dignity and Meaning.

These fundamental aspects of our shared humanity are of profound importance for Ukrainians, particularly as this Symposium marks the fourth anniversary of the start of the full-scale war in Ukraine.

- Freedom – the freedom to be fully alive and fully human.
- Dignity – the essence of human worth; humanity deserving of respect.
- Meaning – the heart of our work as psychotherapists: giving life its fullest meaning and honouring the deepest significance of human existence.

These three aspirations lie at the core of humanity’s deepest hopes and desires, and they form a foundation of hope for the future of Ukraine.

We are deeply honoured and grateful to celebrate our Tenth Symposium with a group of highly distinguished speakers, as well as a live sociodrama. Our distinguished speakers include Myroslav Marynovych, Professor Lutz Goetzmann, Professor Roman Kechur and Dr. Zvenyslava Kechur.

The sociodrama will be conducted by Olena Stupak together with Olena Kuchynska in Ukraine, and Ron Wiener with Diane Adderley in the United Kingdom.

This Tenth Symposium promises to be a rich, moving and truly memorable event!

SPEAKERS

MYROSLAV MYRONOVYTCH

Political Prisoner; Humanitarian Leader

Lecture “Freedom and Dignity.”

First and foremost, the speech refers to two important changes:

- a) the emergence of a powerful fighter capable of significantly paralyzing the Kremlin octopus, replacing the previously subdued Ukraine, and
- b) a change in the US itself, which joined Putin in destroying the international order and replaced the language of values with the lexicon of national (if not personal) egoism.

As a result of these two developments, Ukraine was faced with the question of whether to continue fighting for values, which we consider to be, above all, human dignity, and freedom. The second part of the speech will focus on the threats to these values and the prerequisites for guaranteeing dignity and freedom.

Myroslav Myronovytch, Advisor to the rector of the Ukrainian Catholic University (since 2024), President of the Institute of Religion and Society at the same university (since 1997). Founding member of the Ukrainian Helsinki Group. Long-time political prisoner (1977–1987). He headed Amnesty International's structures in Ukraine (1991–1996). President (2010–2014) and honorary president of the Ukrainian Center of the International PEN Club (since 2014). Member of the First of December Initiative Group (since 2011).

LUTZ GOETZMANN

Prof. Dr. med., Analyst in private practice in Berlin (SGPsa/IPV), Co-founder of the Institute for Philosophy, Psychoanalysis, and Cultural Studies (IPPK)

Lecture “On the Position of the Absolute Idea in the Ethics of Psychoanalysis.”

I would like to start my lecture by introducing Hegel's absolute idea, which is completed in the union of theory (knowledge) and practice (action), and interpret its gradual formation within the framework of the Borromean registers, i.e., within our thought processes. Here, I argue that the ethics of psychoanalysis lie not only in fidelity to desire, but above all in the freedom to choose whether to follow our desires. This also involves the distinction between natural and pure will/desire. I will apply this model to several passages from the diaries of Viktor Klemperer, which he wrote during the German Nazi regime.

Lutz Goetzmann, Prof. Dr. med., analyst in private practice in Berlin (SGPsa/IPV), co-founder of the Institute for Philosophy, Psychoanalysis, and Cultural Studies (IPPK), and co-editor of the journal "Y- Zeitschrift für atopisches Denken". Author of numerous psychoanalytical works, including on psychosomatics and cultural studies, and most recently editor of the climate volume: "Im Angesicht der Katastrophe – Theorie und Aktion in Zeiten des Klimakollaps" („In the Face of Catastrophe – Theory and Action in Times of Climate Collapse”), IPPK-Verlag, Berlin.
